

DINING WITH DRAGONS

CAROL SELVA RAJAH
WITH DR ABEL ARUMUGAM

Laced with humour and detail, this is the story of well-known Malaysian-born cookbook author and culinary teacher Carol Selva Rajah, who now lives in Australia. It tells of the significant women in her life, and spans three generations, across continents – always driven by food, so it's only fitting that each chapter is capped with a recipe.

PRE-SUASION: A REVOLUTIONARY WAY TO INFLUENCE AND PERSUADE

ROBERT CIALDINI

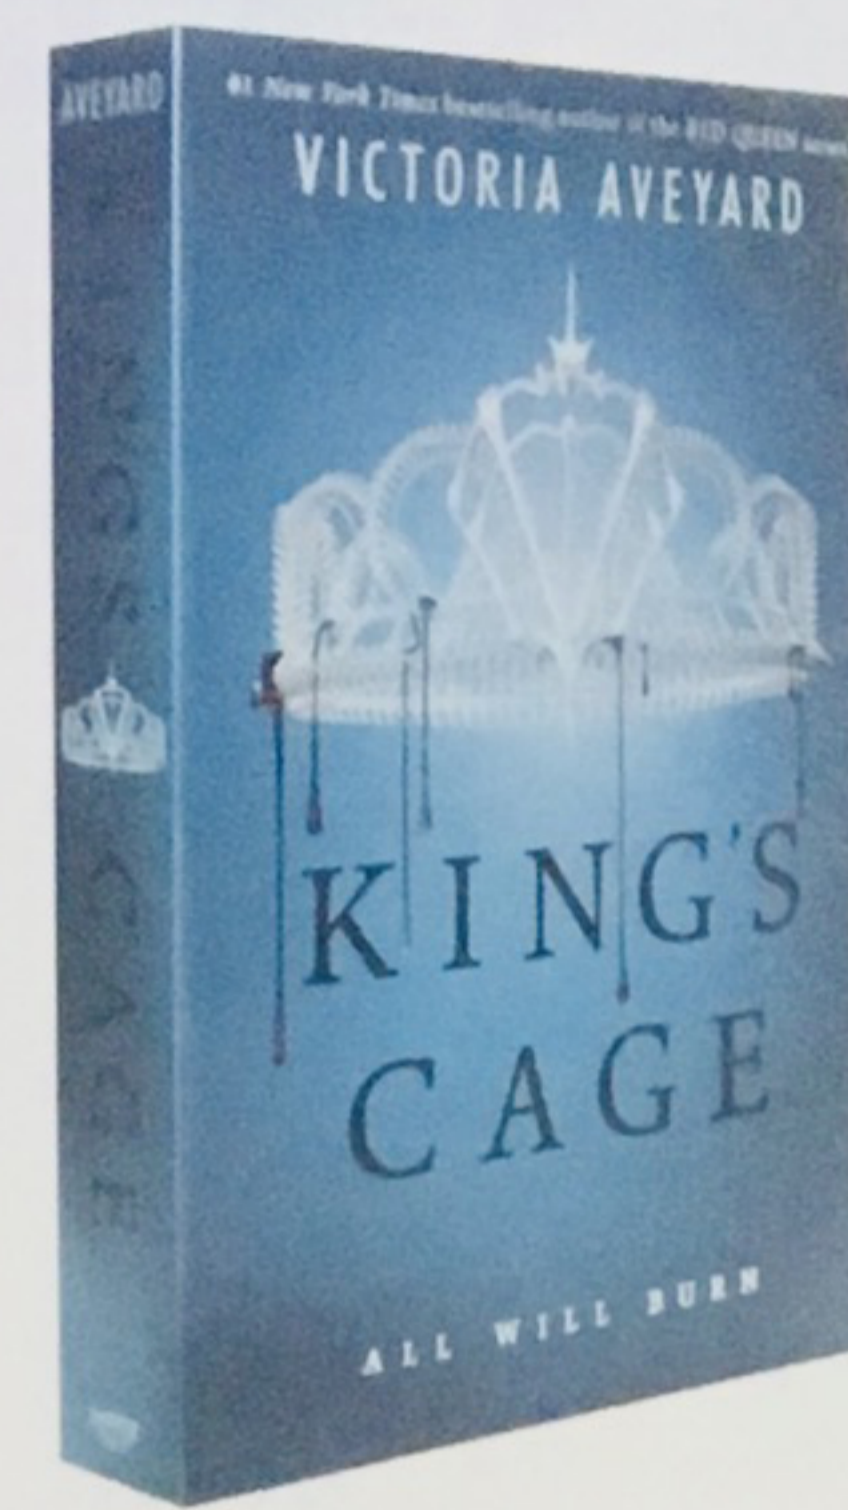

In this book on the science of persuasion, social psychologist Robert Cialdini writes about the psychology of marketing and influence, and how to frame the discussion long before the actual moment of decision. Full of practical examples, this is for anyone from the newest salesman to the most advanced marketer.

HUMANS, BOW DOWN

JAMES PATTERSON
& EMILY RAYMOND,
ILLUSTRATED
BY ALEXANDER
OVCHINNIKOV

The Great War is over, and humans weren't the winners. Under the Robot rulers, humans can submit and serve, or be banished to the desolate landscape of the Reserve, which the Robots are planning to take over. Six, who lost her whole family in the war, is determined to save the human race.

KING'S CAGE

VICTORIA AVEYARD

In the third instalment of the Red Queen series, Mare Barrow is a prisoner of the boy – now a king – she once loved. Powerless without her lightning, she lives at the mercy of Maven Calore. But the exiled prince Cal will stop at nothing to get her back, and the newblood and Red rebels are preparing for war.

BY YOUR SIDE

KASIE WEST

What do you do when you fall for someone you'd never expect? Autumn Collins and Dax Miller are accidentally locked into the library for the whole weekend. As they live on vending machine food and slowly open up to each other, a surprising connection forms – but can it survive the real world?
